

INFORMATION LEAFLET PATIENT & STAFF STORIES PROJECT

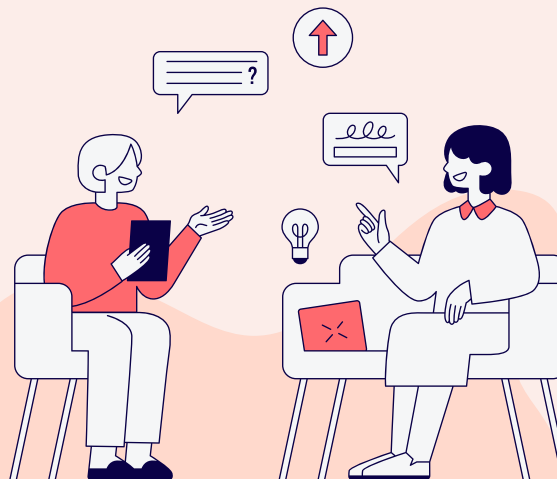

Have you or someone you know had experience with sepsis or antibiotic resistance?

Your story may raise awareness and support educating others on sepsis and antibiotic resistance

What is the Stories Project?

A team of researchers from University College of Cork are looking for individuals to share their experiences of sepsis and antibiotic resistance to create awareness and allow others to learn from these experiences

What is involved in taking part?

A member of the research team will meet with you in person or online and ask you a series of questions to gain insight into your experiences and hear your voice

Will I have to share personal information?

You can choose to have your story identifiable for our 'Stories Leaflet', or you can choose to remain anonymous. Your story could help and support others

If I get in touch can I change my mind?

Yes, of course. You can contact us for more information before you decide. Participation is voluntary and you have the right to withdraw at any point. Supports will be offered to support you during the collection of your story

GET IN TOUCH

To register your interest and speak with a member of our research team to understand what is involved, please scan the QR code below. Once you have submitted your details, a member of the research team will be in touch with you shortly. Alternatively, you can email our researcher Clara on cheinrich@ucc.ie for further information

